Riad Asserts Egypt Is Still Seeking Peace

By Jesse Lewis

CAIRO, Nov. 26 (WP).-Egyptian Foreign Minister Malimoud Riad said yesterday that Egypt was still seeking a penceful solu-tion to the Middle East crisis and welcomed American efforts to bring it about.

"If tomorrow Washington will come to me and say here is a plan for peace which will result in the withdrawal of Israel from our territory we will welcome such a move." Mr. Riad said in an axclusive interview.

"Our main effort is to reach a peaceful solution which will lead to the liberation of our ter-We will fight when we see that all doors are closed."

Mr. Riad appeared to be seeking to remove the impression that nothing could stop Egypt from going to war to retrieve Israelioccupied Arab territory.

Sadat's Speeches Last Saturday and Sunday, President Anwar Sadat told army and air force units that Egypt had decided to fight to recover Sinal and that Egypt had broken off "all contacts with the U.S. for a peaceful solution." Similar statements have been made within the past four days by senior

Egyptian Army officers. Mr. Riad, who will lead the Egyptian delegation at the UN General Assembly debate on the Middle East next month, also

• Additional sales of Phantom aircraft to Israel by the U.S. would lead to "more deterioration" of relations between Egypt and the United States and could cause violent reaction in the Arab world. He added, however, that a resumption of diplomatic relations between Egypt and the United States would follow, once a Middle East settlement is reached. • There were some differences in the embryonic union of Egypt. Syria and Libya, but "it would be unnatural" if there were no problems in forging a federation. The interview took place in the (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

U.S. Pulling Out 3.233 More GIs SAIGON, Nov. 26 (AP),-

The U.S. Command announced today the cutback from Vicinam of 13 more Army units, with a total strength of 3.223 troops, in a continued pre-Christmas speedup of withdrawals.

The units include another battalion of the 101st Airborne Division, the last remaining combat division in Vietnam, and nine helicopter and fixed-wing aviation companies. About 100 helicopters are involved in the cutback.

The cuts are part of President Nixon's latest directive to pare U.S. troop strength in Vietnam to 139,000 by the end of January. Present strength in Vietnam is about

> Mr. Phillips proposed that the question of a world disarmament conference be placed on the agenda of the 1972 session of the assembly. This, he said, "would enable all interested governments during the coming year to consider the many Juggestions and observations" made during the current debate.

Chiao's Speech

China's chief delegate, Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuanhua, in a speech yesterday called on the assembly not to vote on the Soviet proposal at this time, because it failed to set out clear aims and practical steps.

Soviet delegate Jacob A. Malik challenged the position of the United States and Peking, insisting that the time is ripe for the proposed world conference and that the aims are clearly "If anyone should try to claim that the purpose of this conference is not clear," Mr. Malik declared, "this person is trying to delay or complicate the convening of the conference."

Today's speech was much more moderate in tone than Mr. Malik's statement Wednesday, in which he accused the United States and China of joining in a "curious duet of negativism."

Defends Treaties Mr. Malik defended the arms treaties negotiated in recent years, including the partial nuclear test ban treaty and the pac. limiting the spread of nuclear weapons, against attacks from Peking and other countries. "Today," he said, "we are forced to note that those who criticize and attack the Moscow treaty do not themselves ... cease their nuclear tests, nor propose any positive grounds for the solution of this problem."

Mr. Phillips, while not closing the door on a possible world conference at some future date, said progress in disarmament negotiations can best be achieved in quiet exchanges of views and "in an atmosphere relatively free of polemics." "We would not expect that these would be characteristics of a world disarmament conference," he said.

Ulbricht Re-elected as Head of State Council

By John M. Goshko

BONN, Nov. 26 (WP).-Walter Ulbricht, the aging former leader of East Germany's Communist regime, was re-elected today to a new four-year term as chairman of the Council of

The post, which Mr. Ulbricht has held continuously since its creation in 1960, makes him East Germany's chief of state.

In giving the 72-year-old Mr. Ulbricht a new term, the Volkskammer, East Germany's parliament, confounded many Western observers who had expected that he would be eased into total retirement and replaced as chairman by Premier Willi Instead, the Volkskammer re-elected Mr. Stoph, 57, to a fouryear term in his present office. Its action indicated that the top political leadership would remain unchanged for the time being. Mr. Ulbricht, who dominated East Germany with autocratic ruthleseness for 20 years, stepped down last May as first secretary of the Communist party-the country's most powerful position. He was replaced by Erich Honecker, 59, who has since emerged as the regime's unquestioned top man. The indications have been, however, that Mr. Ulbricht did not leave the party leadership willingly. He appears to have been forced out because of his age and the Soviet Union's growing irritation over his opposition to the bettering of relations between the Communist bloc and West

For the first few weeks after the change-over, Mr. Ulbricht showed few signs of fading gracefully into the background. And, for a time, Mr. Honecker was thought to be maneuvering to shove him completely off the political stage.

In June, for example, the Volkskammer voted to remove Mr. Ulbricht as chairman of the National Defense Council and replace him with Mr. Honecker. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

ident Anwar Sadat has told the White House the sale to Israel of ground - to - ground missiles would cause a major escalation in Middle East tensions, the newspaper Al Ahram said today.

Mr. Sadat's message to President Nixon yesterday followed Washington press reports that the Pentagon was considering selling Israel Lance missiles instead of Phantom aircraft.

Egyptian military sources said this development would be discussed tomorrow when the 17nation Arab League Defense Council meets to review the military situation and a battle plan against Israel.

For the first 10 month; of the year, the trade deficit has reached $' 5 billion. Exports during that period have risen only 3 per-cent from 1970, while imports have surged 15 percent. In San Clemente, Calif., Ron Ziegler, White House press secretary, insisted: "The October figures were heavily distorted because of the dock strikes. Conclusions should not be drawn from this about basic trends." Asked if he was saying that President Nixon was not too concerned with the largest trade deficit in history, Mr. Ziegler replied: "We realize there is a problem. We are taking steps to deal with it."

Surcharge's Role Mr. Ziegler said the 10 percent import surcharge, imposed Aug. 15, and the decision to permit the dollar to float on international markets would help solve the problem. He also noted that the United States would seek, at a Rome meeting next Tuesday of the world's major trading nations, a realignment of international currency values.

Pierre Billotte, former defense minister and later overseas territories minister under Prime Minister Georges Pompidou, said in a public statement that the Service de Documentation Exterieure et Contre-Espionnage was now so compromised that it "should be dissolved." Gen. Billotte, a Gaullist deputy and founder of one of the leftist Gaullist movements, said that SDECE had become a "state within a state, clearly outside the republican order."

Further Embarrassment

These comments, coming from a man who was charged by President Georges Pompidou to recommend the SDECE reforms that eventually led to the naming of Alexandre de Marenches as the new director, were a further embarrassment to the govern-ment. Officials have been saying in the last few days that there was no trouble at SDECE and even if there was, it had nothing to do with the drug case, which has touched off widespread public criticism of the country's secret service.

Gen. Billotte, who was Gen. de Gaulle's wartime chief of staff in London, admitted that more than a year ago the situation at SDECE had "come to the limit of what is tolerable for a republic." later explained on the radio that he meant there were "too many shady characters at SDECE. Further elaborating, he said, There is still an anti-Pompidou

Gen. Billotte said it was "scandalous" that Mr. Debré had taken this line and had not defended the "leftist Gaullists" who had been speaking out latelynamely Col. Gen Billotte indicated in his statements today that he had recommended to Mr. Pompidou in his report on SDECE last year that the orientation be changed to eliminate these agents.

He said that the scandal that has now erupted around the drug case and the charges by U.S. Attorney Herbert J. Stern that Col. Paul Fournier, of SDECE, is also guilty of drug traffic show that ed were not completely carried

Gen. Billotte praised Mr. de Marenches as a man "of honor and integrity," but he took sharp issue with the government and said it was "scandalous" that no "sharp, clearly formulated and entirely credible denial" had been made to Mr. Stern's charges.

Tonight, Raymond Marcellin, the interior minister, responded to this challenge by saying that the drug case—in which Roger Delouette, a onetime SDECE operative, was arrested in New Jersey—was "difficult," but that France would "do everything to help the American government. Taking a line completely different from that of Mr. Debré. who accused Mr. Stern of purely political motives, Mr. Marcellin said that "it is necessary that the truth be found in this Delouette

Volkswagenwerk AG of Wolfsburg, the Bayerischen Motoren-werke (BMW) of Munich, Audi-NSU AG of Ingolstadt and Adam Opel of Ruesselsheim all announced today that they were considering partial or total shutdowns next week because the situation in Baden-Wuerttemberg was causing a shortage of parts.

Both Volkswagen and BMW said they would close down Dec. 3, Friday of next week, if the strike continued. A shutdown would idle 100,000 workers at Volkswagen and about 23,000 at Opel gave no date for a possible shutdown, saying only that "major parts of our production" will close if the strike continues. The lockout, which went into effect last midnight, closed all plants in the North Baden-Wuerttemberg labor district with more than 100 workers.

That it didn't turn out that way is thought to be due to several factors. More recently, for example, Mr. Uthricht has shown a greater disposition to accept the role of an elder states-

U.S. Robot Undersea Camera Responds to Head Movements

By Walter Sullivan
NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (NYT), that can operate down to 7,000 -An aquatic robot, its television camera controlled by head motions of a distant operator, has demonstrated dramatically what can be done by matching human image-processing abilities with ench a system.

Every time the operator turns or tilts his head, a distant underwater camera does the same, transmitting an image to a scope held in front of the operator by his harness. The result is an input to the brain similar to that of direct vision and the effect is So vividly does the operator feel that he is on the scene with the camera that, when he "looks down" by dipping his head, he is dismayed not to see his feet. Although the camera projects a tilted image on the screen when the operator tilts his head, he sees the scene upright-with no tiit. Yet anyone looking over his shoulder would see the scene

Like Direct Vision

Thus the effect on the opera-to: is like that of direct vision. When a person tilts his head the image falling on the retina of his eye is tilted, but his brain cor-rects for this effect and the scene continues to look upright. The same thing happens with headcoupled TV.

The result, Navy developers of the system believe, is a unique coupling of the brain with remote vision and sensing. They see it as applicable to a wide range of tasks where human observational capabilities are needed in hostile environments.

Of primary concern to the Navy are water depths where pressures present serious operational problems for a swimmer or diver. The system has been developed at the Naval Undersea Research and Development Center in San Diego. Calif., and several applications are now being explored.

One is to the Remote Underwater Work System under development in Hawaii. This device, designed to operate at depths as great as 20,000 feet, is controlled by a cable linking it to a support unit on land or affoat. Apart from its military applica-tions, it could be of value to oil companies seeking to operate wells on the sea floor.

U.K. Sees Aid For Africans In Rhodesia

Issues White Paper To Defend Accord

LONDON, Nov. 20 (Reuters),-The British government said to-day that a settlement of the Rhodesian independence dispute would open the way to a comprehensive aid and technical as-sistance program directed to expanding African opportunities in employment and education.

The government said this in a 40-page white paper :parliamentary document) reporting on the agreement for a settlement reached Wednesday in Salisbury between Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home and Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith,

The white paper also gives details of a declaration of human rights which Sir Alec and Mr. Smith agreed would be part of

It said that the British government recognized that while sanctions and international estracism were having some effect on the Rhodesian economic situation, these measures had not brought about, and did not seem likely to bring about, the political changes that were confidently expected at

"Moreover, it was evident that the prospects for the African population (5,000,000) as a whole could only deteriorate if the present situation remained unchanged," the white paper said. "The economic, social and political advance of the Africans could take place only after a return to eco-nomic normality and the restoration of conditions in which orderly change would be possible.

"A settlement could open the way to a comprehensive aid and technical assistance program directed to expanding African opportunities in employment and education in the widest sense which would make an important contribution to this advance."

Kathleen Cleaver said that the Black Panther organization is no longer part of the people's struggle, nor is it serving as a revolutionary force.

She attributed the disintegration of the organization to "in-ternal sabotage." She said that the group's leadership was infiltrated by persons who had right-ist political policies.

"This coincided with Nixon's law-and-order campaign to crush all opposition from the Afro-American liberation movement, she said.

The U.S. Payments Deficit

trade were the same thing as the balance of payments. It is not. From July to September of this year, the net outflow of merchandise trade—the excess of imports over exports, in other words-was no more than one-tenth of the deficit in the balance of payments.

The other nine-tenths of the deficit is hothing but money—capital on its way to new investment, profits, interest, gifts and a so forth. In his speech in New York this week. Mr. Connally was using the recent and very severe payments deficit as proof of the immediate need for trade reform. But that is hardly the whole message.

The largest single item in the United States' current international accounts is entitled "Errors and Omissions." Wisdom in these matters begins with the truth that the basic figures are not very accurate. There are huge gaps and discrepancies, resulting from a data collection system that has a great many holes in it. Unlike sugar and automobiles, money does not have to go through customs. One of the curiosities of our international accounts in recent years is the enormous increase in the errors and omissions accounts. Last year it was over a billion dollars. This year in the second quarter alone it was $2.3 billion. In the third quarter, it was in the range of $5 billion. Since the total deficit in the balance of payments that quarter was about $10 billion, half of it was the surge of unreported and untraceable money accounted under errors and omissions

There is nothing very mysterious about this money. It is, in large and rising proportion, capital going abroad to speculate against the value of the dollar, which is falling steadily. If one had converted $100 into yen last Aug. 15, when Mr. Nixon announced his intention of forcing down the dollar exchange rates, one could convert it back into something like $109.50 today. People who jumped into the West German mark last spring would have made even more. As a way to make a living it is said to be hard on the ulcers, but there are those who love it.

Among the various perils confronting this Republic, the tides of outbound speculative capital are not a very serious matter. It all has to come back, after all, to make a profit. A currency speculator may find Frankfurt a nice place to spend a few months, but he doesn't necessarily want to

The relatively small trade deficit has a relationship, of course, to the dramatic outflow of gamblers' money that has swollen the recent balance-of-payments totals. When a country with a long pattern of trade surpluses suddenly begins to sell less than it buys, the event attracts the attention of dealers who smell the possibility of devalu-That is the point at which this ment on the dollar exchange rates. country arrived last summer, and which is

Secretary Connally keeps talking as though now being reported in the payments statis-

There is a kernel of real danger in his situation, but it is not strictly a matter of the international accounts. An over-valued dollar means a very sharp rise in imports, which undersell domestic industry on a large scale with predictable political results. Foreign governments, particularly the Western Europeans and the Japanese, would be wise to take very seriously those pages of Mr. Connally's New York speech in which he discusses this effect. Mr. Connally and Mr. Nixon have been accused of protectionism in their current economic policy. Mr. Connally is, unfortunately, correct when he says that the alternative to this policy would be a bitter wave of the crudest and most discriminatory protectionist legislation here. The immediate concern here is less the abstractions of the balance of payments than the hard figures of employment, the rate at which imports rise, and labor's take in

* * * The question is still whether the present American tactics are going to take Mr. Connally where he wants to go. He is giving a very persuasive impression that he will settle no single item until he can get a huge comprehensive solution to the whole range of issues that are summed up in the balance of payments. But when half of that deficit is anonymously represented by the errors and omissions account, and when there are some grave doubts as to the precise accuracy of other accounts, a careful man would not choose to be dogmatic about the precise solution required.

Mr. Connally graphically described in New York some of the restraints that the Japanese have put on international competition in their own markets.

And he quite correctly chided the Europeans for discriminating against Japan. But to reform these traditions will be the work of many months, if not years. In any event, no one can say with any degree of assurance what effect the new exchange rates will have on the great worldwide movements of goods and investments. New rates may make some of the trade disputes less difficult

The best rule now is to take one thing at time, beginning with the new exchange rates for the dollar. As long as the ultimate exchange rates are in doubt, the heavy flows of speculative funds will continue. Our customers abroad will continue to have reason to postpone buying goods that might be cheaper in a few weeks. The current uncertainty over parities only aggravates the weaknesses in our position. The finance ministers of the major trading nations are now scheduled to meet at the end of this month in Rome. That is Mr. Connally's opportunity to set aside temporarily his other concerns-trade restrictions and defenseburden sharing-and pursue prompt agree-

Uruguay's Critical Election

The most encouraging thing that can be said about the elections in Uruguay is that they will be held Sunday on schedule. For a country racked by prolonged economic depression and polarized by the urban terrorism of left-wing revolutionaries, that is no small achievement. In this area Uruguay thus continues to set an example for most of

During a campaign marked by violence in a country long accustomed to domestic peace and democratic order, the enemies of President Jorge Pacheco Areco had predicted that he would try to get the armed forces to intervene and cancel the election. Mr. Pacheco, however, is seeking not military intervention but re-election.

He is unlikely to succeed. For him even to be eligible, a majority of the voters Sunday would have to approve an amendment to a constitution that in existing form limits a president to one five-year term. Even many voters who support Mr. Pacheco's strong-but so far inconclusive-actions against the Tupamaro guerrillas are unwilling to abolish the one-term provision.

What will command more attention and concern than Mr. Pacheco's fate is the showing of a leftist coalition strikingly similar to the one that brought Salvador Allende to the presidency in Chile. The Frente Amplio (Broad Front) is made up of radical Catholics, Communists, Socialists, other Marxists and renegades from the traditional Colorado and Blanco parties. It has support from the Tupamaros despite their contempt for elections.

The front has nominated for president a respected former army general, Liber Seregni. and is making a strong challenge, especially in Montevideo. This challenge has further polarized Uruguayan politics, brought young right-wing terrorists into the campaign and resulted in one attempt on Gen. Seregni's

Gen. Seregni's election only a year after that of Dr. Allende would have a profound impact on Latin-American politics. Even a respectable showing would be bound to encourage similar coalitions in other South American countries. More than Uruguay's traditional democratic system will thus be at stake in Sunday's election.

Sino-Soviet Clash in UN

According to many UN experts, no Soviet representative so far has made as tough a speech [as Jacob Malik did Wednesday] against any other world power since the famous Soviet-American controversy provoked by the crushing of the 1956 Hungarian rising.

It has been doubtlessly expected that Peking's admission to the United Nations will carry the Sino-Soviet controversy also into that forum, but no one expected the confrontation to come so fast and to be so violent. It is clear that the clashes and acid polemics will be taking place with increasing frequency in the United Nations in the coming months.

PARIS-One must not get the impression that the United States has a selfish interest in the Cuban matter. True there is a restless jingo element in America which is always for annexing something or other and meddling in foreign affairs which do not concern the country. But the real interest of the United States is to bring the Cuban revolution to an end by peaceful means, before it is allowed to drag on and lead to still graver consequences, VICTORIA FALLS, Rhodesia.-It is 116 years since David Livingstone found the falls. His statue, arms akimbo, looks out over the incredible sight—the mile-wide Zambesi falling twice as far as Niagara, the spray filling the air with rainbows.

Nearby, the Rhodesians have built a replica of a 19th-century Matabele village. African guides take tourists into the round thatch-reofed buts and joke about bride prices. There are dancers and masks and a witch doctor who tells optimistic fortunes. A gift shop sells African

Why is that village such a depressing place? It must be the contrast with the falls. They represent the eternal quality of Africa, the natural wonder that has hardly changed in a century. of Western man, the changed values he has brought.

Condescension

Of course there never was such an African village, so neat and safe and coyly exotic. But the historical condescension is less troubling than the present deception. Once again the white man gets only a blinkered view of African life as it has been affected by Dr. Livingstone and his

The tourist, when he gets to Salisbury, is not likely to cross the railway tracks and see Harari African township. Neither is a white resident of Salisbury, for that matter. But Harari or something like it is the present and future reality for the urbanized Africans of Rhodesia, not a cute thatch village.

Harari is only through an underpass, but it is worlds away from the clean broad streets and beautiful trees of white Salisbury. On one side smoke rises from the municipal garbage dump. The streets are littered and smelly, the stores shabby.

According to official statistics, there are 58,000 people living in Harari Most probably live on a minimum wage of $47 a month, though a few are well-to-do; many have no jobs at all.

Population Growth

Nor is the reality of African rural life much like the charming impression of the tourist village in Victoria Falls. Most Africans in Rhodesia, as elsewhere, still live a peasant subsistence life outside the money economy. But the fessibility of that life is threatened by an immense population growth.

Last year the 5 million Africans in Rhodesia had 232,000 bablesnearly as many new people as the entire white population of 250,000. At the present rate of increase, one of the highest in the world, the population will double in 18 years.

The 1971 economic survey of Rhodesia, a highly informative government publication, shows that nearly half the African population are children. There are three children for every employed person, while in Britain there is less than one child and retired person per worker.

And so this small country, with an underdeveloped economy, faces the problem of providing education and social services and jobs on a base quite out of proportion to the need. There is the drama of understatement in the economic survey's dry language:

"The imbalance of African farms in Nigeria and Kenya, too. children in relation to the size The priviliged position of the of the economy underlines the white Rhodesians merely dramainsuperable problem of creating tizes the situation. sufficient employment opportuni-

Looking at the reality of African slums and rural impoverishment, the visitor may wish he could turn history back. But Western values are infectious: Africans have seen what the West has, and they want it. They will have to pay the price. Ma-tabeleland will not again be as Livingstone found it.

It has all happened since Livingstone: the cities, the cash economy, the communications, the medicine. To romanticize the old Africa would be a mistake; the white men have prevented much cruelty and death. But they have also started a process of change that is out of control.

For Judges

All nettles and bristles, and determined to curb the growing profusion of legal challenges to executive authority, Solicitor General Erwin Griswold (IHT, Nov. 19) muffily asks: "Should judges be dealing almost continuously with heated social and economic controversies?" Why indeed. (Especially when there are so many more important matters divorce cases, insurance claims and the like-cooling their heels in the wings!) The object of Mr. Griswold's annoyance is the Sierra Club, and its suit testing the government's authority to approve construction of a $35-million ski resort on national forest land. Argues Mr. Griswold (as spokesman for the government), such suits should be barred to litigants who have "only an intellectual or emotional interest" in the outcome. (Presumably, a monetary interest is of a higher order, and therefore worthy of judicial recognition.).

Now, it should be borne in mind that the Sierra Club is not made up of little old ladies in tennis shoes, galloping through the woods with bird whistles and butterfly nets. They were instrumental (and very nearly successful) the recent attempt to block the AEC's H-blast at Amchitka. And their motivation is fueled by one of the most critical issues of our time: the ecological equilibrium of our planet.

No longer an issue of mere esthetics, ecology today confronts a mestion of vastly greater significance than just the quality of future life on earth. To be resolved now is whether there is to be any future life at all on

This, as some insist, could prove to be an hysterical overstatement of the case. But if they are wrong, and if we continue in the most literal sense to sell our planet down the drain, then no smount of executive determination is going to put this humpty-dumpty back together again.

One can understand the government's frustration: after all. none of us relishes aggressive and sustained interference with the accomplishment of his job. But, then, it must be remembered that the entire raison d'être for government is to serve its citizens, not the reverse. Moreover, the Sierra Club has incurred the government's ire not for violating but for exercising the law. And as for those regretted "intellectual and emotional interests," wouldn't we perhaps be better off today they (rather than questions of financial loss or gain) were accorded far greater emphasis and respect?

Sports and Politics

By James Reston

WASHINGTON.—The connection between sports and politics in America is getting to be front page news these days. President Nixon was out at the Washington Redskins' football practice the other day, and the governors of Oklahoma and Nebraska were leading the cheers at the big Thanksgiving Day game in Norman. Okla., between the first two college teams in the country. It is an interesting switch. Politicians used to feel that they had to identify themselves with the church in order to pick up votes, and they quoted the Bible to prove their fidelity to the old faith. Now they telephone football coaches instead of bishops, and issue pronouncements on the cunning and confusion of the modern Texas Wishbone offensive strategy, which is now the new holy trinity of football.

Who can blame them? Politicians go where the votes are. The stadium is now more popular in America, or at least more exciting and more decisive, than the church. The game of football, unlike the "great game of politics," is mathematical and understandable. Its rules are plain: four tries to make 10 yards, measurable by the sticks. The field is clearly marked with its sidelines and goal lines. It has a kickoff, a half-time, and an end marked to the second by the clock, and referees and head linesmen to call the close ones and spot the dirty tricks, and instant replay nerss to let the people judge the decisions.

No Metaphysics

In short, football is not a metaphysical exercise. It has pageantry, and a sharp practical clash between the weak and the strong, and at the end, you know who has won. It is not like a theological philosophy or a foreign policy, where you have to wait for a generation and sometimes even a lifetime to discover how it all comes out.

Maybe, then, since sports are so definite and popular and politics on the whole are so vague and uncopular, we should think about applying some of the rules of the football campaigns to our presidential election compaigns. Politicians, for example, are constantly off-side, or out of bounds. They are forever stalling, jumping the gun, grabbing face masks, clipping from the rear, gouging in the clinches and, to use Nixon's own phrase, taking "cheap shots" at crippled opponents. But in politics, there are few referees or head lineamen, and no instant replay. Think of the possibilities of instant replay cameras on the fumbles of our politicians. The television cameras actually did it, not instantly but a little later on, in Vietnam. They showed what the battle in the elephant grass was all about, what "search and destroy," missions really meant in human suffering, what the war did in the Vietnamese villages, and what it did to the GIs with their guns and their PXs, and their Vietnamese women and their dope.

Exposing Facts

The exposure of the facts in Vietnam, primarily by the IV cameras, is really what drove Nixon to question his former hawkish policies and withdraw. But there's still very little instant analysis of the government's latest policies on inflation, unemployment, the balance of payments, money, trade, or labor.

There is a big flap here in Washington now for example about whether George Meany of the AFL-CIO was discourteous to the President at the labor convention in Miami Beach or whether the President went therespoiling for a fight and trying to blame Meany for wrecking the new wages and prices policy.

All this took place in the open, with the television cameras recording the scene, so with an honest political replay process, we should be able to judge what happened. But unlike the football instant replays, there has been no national rerun of what actually happened in Mlami Beach. Everybody seems to have an opinion about the facts, but nobody has replayed the events so that the public can judge for itself. Scolding Meany

The fight between George Meany and Secretary of Treesury John Connally after Miami Beach dramatizes the point. Connally went on national television to scold Meany for being discourteous, arrogant and boorish toward Nixon at the labor convention. "In my humble opinion," said Connaily, who is not noted for humility, Meany was off-side and out of bounds. but lacking a replay of the events nobody can be quite sure about whose manners were the worst.

So maybe, if the politicians are so impressed by the techniques and popularity of sports, they should apply the model sporting devices to themselves. With a presidential election coming up, we really do need some ground rules, some check on foul play dirty tricks, some instant analysis of controversial moves, some political referees and head

Nixon's admiration and enthusiasm for sports is fine, but he had better be careful. For if he dramatizes fair play, fair and precise rules, instant replay judgments on controversial decisions, and even the right of the people to boo in the stands, these procedures could also be applied to presidential politics, and that could make quite a difference.

EMILY GENAUER

The Arts in New York: Plays, Paintings and American Indians

NEW YORK.—Not for easy answers but for some possibly revealing insights into New York's newest mystery, "What's Harold Pinter saying in 'Old Times'?." I suggest a visit to the new show of Josef Albers' paintings at the Metropolitan Museum.

The 41-year-old British playwright and the 83-year-old German-born American painter have produced works equally secretive but intense, tranquil but disturbing, limited in means but with implications of infinite meaning. Pinter has stripped down his words (murmured ambiguous reminiscences between two reunited old friends and the husband of one of them), and Albers his images (mostly squares nestling within squares) to a simplicity verging on the commonplace, even the trivial, but with results that are full of mystery.

There are long silences in the play, and the characters never really touch each other, and at last one doesn't know when or how well they knew each other, and whether one may not even be dead. In Albers' pictures there many empty white spaces, and the only shapes are boxes within boxes, each seeming tightly scaled, yet each depending for its shape and intensity on the boxes enclosing it.

In the paintings and in the play, lighting is incredibly subtle, sometimes soft, then suddenly hold. But it serves less to illumine anything specific than as something mysterious and transcendental, a searching eye, perhaps.

Always, the implied reverberations of the play's dialogue and even the character's gestures are cleanly, coolly disciplined into almost too stylized patterns; in Albers' many variations of his "Homage to the Square," there is that same mystical balance between lyrical feeling and austers

One could draw further parallels, but there's not much point. I bring them up only because in the visual arts mysteries are both more acceptable and accessible than in the theater. Visitors to the large retrospective exhibition at the Metropolitan can be observed sitting quietly for long periods on gallery benches, studying the pictures, utterly absorbed in and apparently much moved by them, but, in any case, not resisting. Of course the media are different. One doesn't so quickly yield expectations of meaning in spoken dialogue. But perhaps a visit to the Albers show before seeing "Old Times" at the Billy Rose Theater will leave audiences readier than they were for communication on another and more provocative level than the explicit meaning ex-

Another new play which is not a mystery at all also invites passing and perhaps persuasive comparison with a new exhibition. The play this time is Neil Simon's "The Prisoner of Second Avenue," at the Eugene O'Neill Theater; the exhibition is drawings by cartoonist William Steig at the Weyhe Galleries. Not that audiences need much persuading to see any Neil Simon work, or that what they'll see and hear at "The Prisoner" requires inter-

The fact is, nevertheless, that mild objections have been raised in several corners that Simon's characters in this immensely funny comedy about a young couple done in by the trials of life in New York have no dimension, and that the play doesn't go anywhere. It remains a sharply perceptive, compassionate series of sight gags that have to do with specific situations and and superb craft, to development into an hour and a half of almost continual laughter effective for exactly the same qualities. Simon's main characters and extraordinary accomplishment is the length of an evening.

The "most" major event of the New York art week (Albers' pictures, after all, turn up frequent ly, although their showing at the Met of course constitutes a "major" occasion) is the exhibition at the Whitney Museum called "Two Hundred Years of North Amer-ican Indian Art."

New York indicate that realism remains a strong force among painters. One wouldn't expect anything different from Joseph Hirsch, of course, who long ago took his position on that controversy. But his newest pictures, at the Forum Gallery, also make clear that within the realist framework he continues to grow and change, His textures are infinitely richer than in the past, his palette is more luminous. What he's referring to the influences of non-Indians, is the closing of Les Halles, the famous market of Paris, which he describes as "the last image of the Natural in the City." He re-creates it in a rather astonishing way, a 10-foot-long hyperrealist relief sculpture made of painted epoxy resins, in which the venders in a procession carrying their fruits and vegetables come out, somehow, as a cross between the pop-art sculptural cartoons of Red Grooms and the drawings of Thomas Rowlandson. The workers are at once tough hard, strong, sad, gentle and resilient. They're seen against a background of familiar monuments of the district. Mason's conception is a technical tour de force a little shocking because it's so unexpected at this moment in art history (being more tender than is pop art). And it's the more effective for being exhibited with a group of his remarkably free and fluid preparatory drawings.

Art Market: Contradictions At a Sale of French Silver

By Source Melikian

DARIS, Nov. 26 (IHT).-Part of the collection of French sliver formed by the late David David-Welll was auctioned Wednesday at the Palais Galliéra. A prior sale, held on June 4, had aroused nsiderable enthusiasm. Enormous prices were paid for some of the top-quality pieces: 825,000 francs were offered for a gold box attributed to J.A. Melssonier.

Wednesday's sale was different, partly because the objects were different but partly, no doubt, because of deteriorating market

Pieces of the type that fetched the record 825,000 francs last June were missing, but the quality was high. A similar group of French silver is unlikely to come up for sale again soon, an important point to keep in mind when assessing the sale (which was conducted by Etienne Ader, assisted by expert Jacques Helft). Some late 17th and early 18th-century objects, of which few have survived, were truly superb. Lot 10, a pair of candlesticks made by Jacques Besnier in 1719 brought shouts of admiration from two dealers: 68,570 francs, they seemed to think, was a reasonable price A real masterpiece of Louis XIV silver, a covered bowl made by Antoine I. Renaud (or Renard; the spelling is in doubt) at Lyons in 1679, fetched 116,070 francs, a fourth less than the expert's estimate and, I think, decidedly less than what it was worth in view of the superb quality of chiseling. The same applies to a cadenas, a flat rectangular container used to hold a fork, knife, spoon and saltcellar of royalty from Renaissance times on. It deserved more than the 143,570 francs it made.

Small Box

It would be exaggerating to say that the really good pieces did badly, but throughout the sale I kept thinking that they might have done better. A small box by François Thomas Germain, Lot 25, was a striking example. Germain's name is about as glamorous to French collectors as Paul de Lamerie's is to the British. The box was once in the Henri Chasles collection, which was sold in Paris in 1907, and later to the Marius Paulme collection, which was sold in April, 1923. It was illustrated in Louis Carté's "Guide de l'Orfevrerie Française," published in 1931, and I would put it among the artist's best works. It sold for 116,070 francs, like the covered bowl, a fourth under the expert's estimate. I wouldn't have been surprised to have seen it sell for 165,000 francs.

Another example of an "inexpensive" object: a sugar bowl (Lot 30) by Marc-Etienne Janety dated 1786. It was made of platinum, a metal considered less "noble" than silver in the 18th century and therefore seldom used for high-quality pieces. Baron Jérôme Pichon, one of the greatest collectors of French silver in the 19th century, once owned it. The 44,570 francs paid by the London firm of J.S. Phillips was one third under the expert's estimate and, I

High Bids

The impression that silver is on a downward trend is not altogether justified. There were high bids. Another work by François-Thomas Germain, a silver salver dated 1750, was very expensive at 220,570 francs. While this price may be regarded as "acceptable" because of the superb workmanship, a couple of cloches couvre-plats, bell-shaped covers to keep food warm, went for the fantastic price of 286,570 francs. The two pieces, made by Jacques-Nicolas Froettiers, are part of a large set (the exact number is not recorded) made by the order of Catherine II of Russia, who presented them to Count Gregory Grigorlevich Orlov. The Russian imperial coat of arms engraved on the two dishes made by Edme-Pierre Balzac as companion pieces bear witness to their glamorous pedigree. Nevertheless, neither the covers nor the dishes are unique. Most dealers agreed that the price was extremely high.

e contradictory facts show that auctions are never go erned by purely rational rules. The emotions of the collector who is tempted, for personal reasons, to buy a piece play a role. The contradictions also point to what I would call a moderate reticence on the part of private buyers. French collectors were very active, but orders from abroad were scanty and falled to act as an incentive Americans, particularly, did not send as many orders as they did in June. Had they done so, the comparatively moderate prices paid for some of the best pieces from the 17th and 18th centuries would surely have brought higher prices.

Audience

In short, French silver is not falling out of favor, but for sale of international standards to be 100 percent successful, there must be an international audience. A third factor may have contributed to the moderate prices

Some connoisseurs suggested that the expert had been overly optimistic in some of his assessments. Lot 21, a magnificent tureen shaped box attributed to Antoine-Sebastien Durand, was illustrated in the catalogue and a drawing of this artist's hallmark accompanied the photograph, but I could see no hallmark on the actual piece. The presence of a hallmark, of course, enhances value.

One connoisseur expressed doubts concerning the condition of a pair of candlesticks. He suggested that they might have originally been made as pique-cierges, church candlesticks with long tapering points at the top instead of the bobeches (candle sockets). Although the two lots sold extremely well (116,070 francs)—higher than a dealer could ever hope to sell them for these candlesticks and a few other pieces failed to impress some collectors favorably.

The auction revealed that top pieces of silver still fetch high prices but no longer rise beyond wild expectations. A sale next week will show whether this applies to objets d'art as well. The collection of the late George Geffroy, one of France's finest con-noisseurs, will go on the block Thursday at the Palais Galliéra.

The décor of the galleries has been reconstructed from an account of Whistler's deligns for his Venetian etchings exhibition in 1883. The catalogue has 56 plates, comprehensive notes and a scintiliating introduction by Denys Sutton. There are 258 of Whistler's prints on show. Some of the finest are those he made in Parls in 1892 and 1893 when he lived on the Rue du Bac. The show ranges from his student last years in the mid-1890s and provides a fine commentary on his life and times.

Le Noir et Blanc, William Weston Gallery, 38 Albemarle St., London W. 1.

William Weston, who specializes in fine 19th and 20th-centurymaster prints, is celebrating the opening of this new gallery with an exhibition similar in kind and intention to those mounted in Paris in the 1880s. The 36 works in the show include two London etchings by Whistler, a first edition of one of the only three plates engraved by Cézanne, an early etching of an orchard by James Ensor, two first editions, from Goya's "Los Caprichos" and a superb cat study by Steinlen.

Frascr was much more of a designer and illustrator than an artist. This show of his water-colors, drawings and sketchbooks, including his "Book of Simple Toys," is a timely revival of a talent almost forgotten. Included in the exhibition are costume designs for Gladys Cooper, Karsavina and productions at the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre along with textile designs and pastoral watercolors of England.

Cimarosa and Vivaldi in Paris

By David Stevens PARIS, Nov. 26 (IHT),-The musical histories are full of the electrifying effects that Italian musicians have made on visits to Paris, and the Semaine Musicule Italienne that has just ended was at least a transient example of this phenomenon. The main events were two theatrical works, little-known in themselves but representing two great Italian musical traditions-Cimarosa's opera buffa "Il Ma-trimonio Segreto" and Vivaldi's sacred oratorio "Juditha Triumphans." Both were given by the Piccolo Teatro Musicale of Rome. which has done as much for opera buffa in the last couple of decades Virtuosi di Roma, has done for the instrumental music of Vivaldi and his contemporaries—both under the baton and artistic leadership of Renato Fasano.

The cheers that greeted the first performance of "Il Matrimonio Segreto" at the Opéra-Comimue on Wednesday must surely have shaken some of the dust from the corners of the Salle Favart. The work itself is worthy of it. Cimarosa was a cosmopolitan contemporary of Mozart and precursor of Rossini, and this opera-although it had its premiere in Vienna on the heels of Mozart's great comic creations held its own then and remains the only one of the composer's 60-odd stage works to hold the

Happily, this group's productions bear none of the dust of the music library, but are built around first-class singers and lively stagings. In this case, the rather routine tale of a secret marriage revolved around the incomparable Sesto Bruscantini as Don Geronimo, the father who gets hopelessly tangled up in the process of marrying off his two

This paritone is always a delight to watch and hear—he has fully deployed with perfect diction, yet with both feet firmly planted in the music. He is a Mozartian par excellence, and does not hesitate to lavish the same care on Cimarosa, Rossini and Verdi. Yet his colleagues were peers. Pizzi's baroque costumes were attractive and Sequi's delicately stylized staging was convincing in reconstituting, in religious surroundings, what is really an Old Testament story of lust and beheading. Fasano and his Virtuosi were, as in the Cimarosa, impec-

How to start benefiting from investment management with as little as $5,000

If the money you have today is to grow in the future toward more income, or for education, travel, leisure, retirement, it must be kept working full time to achieve your goals.

Yet you may find that you are actually losing ground due to inflation, taxes or lack of time for investment decisions. To help solve this problem, clients in 55 countries have turned to The Danforth Associates Investment Management Plan. It has, we believe, proved especially efficient in providing continuing capital growth supervision for portfolios of from $5,000 to $50,000—on behalf of people who recognize and can share the risks and rewards of common stock investments. The cost is modest, as low as $100 per year. For a complimentary copy of a 42-page report describing this tested plan, its complete 10-year "performance record," and how it may help you now, simply write Dept. Q-20.

("Montarey"), a societic anonyme organized and existing under the laws of Luxembourg, so that shareholders of Aldringer will receive shares Luxembourg, so that shareholders of Aldringer will receive shares of Monterey having an aggregate value (calculated as at the date of the Extraordinary General Meeting referred to below or if the meeting is adjourned, at the date of such adjournment), equal to the aggregate value of their shareholding in Aldringer (calculated in the same manner as at the same date after taking into account the costs of the merger payable by Aldringer). Full information about the proposed merger and about Montercy is set out in the following documents, which are available to shareholders at the registered office of Aldringer. 14 Rue Aldringer Luxembourg and at the office of Cazznove & Co., 12 Tokenhouse Yau London E.C. 2R - 7AN, England.

A. Merger Agreement dated November 23rd, 1971, and made between Aldringer and Monterey.

B. A letter to shareholders of Aldringer setting out the terms and mechanics of the merger and the reasons therefor, having appended thereto an Explanatory Memorandum dated November 23rd, 1971, giving full information about Monterey and financial statements relating to Monterey in respect of the half-year from then until September 30th, 1971.

Accordingly, notice is hereby given to shareholders that an Extraordinary General Meeting of Aldringer will be held at 4 p.m. on Tuesday. December 14th, 1971, at 14 Rue Aldringer, Luxembourg, with the following Agenda.

AGENDA

1. To approve an Agreement dated November 23rd, 1971, and made between the Company and Monterey Trust S.A. by which: (a) The Company will subscribe in each for shares of Monterey having an aggregate net asset value equal to the value of the total assets of the Company less an amount sufficient to meet all liabilities of the Company and Aldringer Trust Holding Company at a price equal to the net asset value per share of Monterey determined as at the date of the Meeting or if the Meeting is adjourned, at the date of such adjournment; and

(b) The Company will transfer to Monterey its total assets less the amount specified above for a consideration in cash equal to the value of the assets so transferred determined as at the date of the Meeting or if the Meeting is adjourned, at the date of such adjournment.

2. To dissolve the Company with effect from the date of the Meeting, to appoint as Liquidators Messrs. Georges Kioes and Ernest Lecuit, partners in Fiduciaire Genérale de Luxembourg and to instruct them to implement the action proposed under 1, above and to distribute the assets of the Company to its sharsholders (after providing for all liabilities) in proportion to the amounts paid on subscription for the relative shares.

Shareholders are adviced that the quorum required at the Meeting in order for valid decisions to be taken is the holders present in person or by proxy of at least 50 percent of the shares of the Company in issue. In the event that a quorum is not present, or if the Board of Directors so resolves for other reasons, a second meeting, at which there will be no quorum requirement, may be convened by further notice. In such event, voting on all me on the above Agenda will be adjourned to the second Meeting.

In accordance with Luxembourg Law, the Resolutions to be proposed at the Extraordinary General Meeting and at any second Meeting will require the concurrence of two-thirds of the rotal number of shares represented at the Meeting, provided that, at any second meeting, shares not represented at the Meeting (up to a maximum of one-third of the total number of shares in issue) will be deemed to vote in favour of the proposed Resolutions, and that in that case the Resolutions will require the concurrence of a majority of the shares represented at the Meeting.

Holders of bearer shares may vote at the Mesting in person by producing at the Meeting either their share certificates or a certificate of deposit which will be issued to them against deposit of their share certificates with Banque Générale du Luxembourg.

Holders of bearer shares may vote at the Meeting by proxy completing the form of proxy which will be made available them squinst deposit of their share certificates as aforesaid. Share certificates so deposited will be retained until the Meeting or any adjournment thereof has been concluded. In order to 52 valid, all forms of proxy must reach the registered office of the Company not later than 13 (noon) on December 14th 1971.

For and on behalf of

Mr. Eberle revealed that he will be going from Geneva to Rome to stand by at the Group of Ten finance ministers meeting m which Secretary of the Treasury John Connally will be in the chair next Tuesday and Wednesday. He said that on his visits to Brussels and London he had asked other governments to send trade ministers to Rome also so that trade could be discussed alongside the monetary problems.

Calls From Washington

Mennwhile the same idra has ocen pressed in the capitals of the six Common Market countries in telephone calls by Treasury Undersecretary Paul Volcker from Washington. But at Common Market headquarters in Brussely, as well as at the GATT council meeting, the answer to the Unit-ed States has been a polite no.

Not only is there a strong feeling that a sudden unprepared meeting of trade ministers would not accomplish anything. There is above all the insistence of the other nations that the monetary issue must be settled first and not complicated by trade ques-tions which can be taken up afterwards.

About the only result which the United States managed to obtain from the GATT meeting, apart from the opportunity to warn the rest of the world of the dangers of not playing the new game the American way. was a general statement of reaffirmation of trade policy and an agreement to start an urgent study of distortions of GATT rules through preferential trading arrangements such as the Common Market negotiates in its association agreements.

The final GATT statement did endorse U.S. objectives, but only in these general terms: "The contracting parties agree that looking to the longer term it is their intention, as a principal objective, to pursue in the GATT a new major initiative for dealing with the longer term trade problems as soon as this is feasible."

There are, of course, plenty of loopholes in this statement of their rate 0.25 intent, even though there is a the fixed prime genuine determination, to head or U.S. banks. off a real trade war in the world. But the gap in approach to the problem between the United States and the rest of the trading world is certainly not yet growing smaller.

Only time will tell whether the stock market actually has rounded the corner and changed its trappings from a bear to a bull with today's performance.

On Wall Street, analysts were content to put a "technical rally" tag on the semi-holiday session that showed a volume of only 10.87 million shares. The Big Board was closed yesterday in observance of Thanksgiving.

The market in general-and many stocks in particular—had dropped to the point where a technical recovery was widely predicted. A number of brokerage conterns, for exemple, had noted that the 775-800 area on the Dow could provide a pos.">le bottem for stock prices. On Tuesday, the indicator ended at

Faced With Growing World Concern

U.S. Seen Willing to Bargain on Surtax

By Hobart Rowen WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (WP). -The Nixon administration, facing intensified world concern over its international money and trade policy, appears more willing than ever before to lift the controversial 10 percent import surcharge if it can get a satis-factory realignment of exchange rates in favor of the dollar. In statements by officials earlier this week, notably one by Federal Reserve chairman Arthur F. Burns, the administration was trying to signal a new desire to get these matters resolved.

In effect, the administration is ready to modify earlier demands for substantial liberalization in trade barriers and for sharing the free world defense "burden." postponing most of these to a later time. Borrowing from the semantics of the wage-price program, it was learned that the administration has now arranged its priorities into a "phase one" and "phase two." The phase one goal would be a 10 to 12 percent average depreciation of the dollar against other world currencies, thus making U.S. products cheaper and more competitive. Some immediate trade concessions would be sought from Canada and Japan, but so far as Europe is concerned, the main effort would be concentrated on getting longterm negotiations underway. In return, the United States would drop the 10 percent surcharge. Phase two would cover a period

THE ADVENTURES OF MAO ON THE LONG MARCH

Kathy Black's is looser, shapeless at times, not afraid to let the rough edges show. It is also more accessible in spite of what appears to be a wayward and haphazard style. Her materials are familiar, her characters recognizable as types if not always as individuals.

But it is "The Adventures of Mao" that has the larger range be adventuresome, exhilarating,

fresh. Neither author has follow-and will reverberate in the mem-ory after the book is closed. It has a curious structure. The story it tells is not new and every reader will know how it comes out, yet it somehow races along, taking the reader with it. It is made up of unlikely elements. Part of it is the story, surely true in larger outline, of the split between the Communists and Nationalists in the Knomintang, the internal struggle within the Communist ranks between those who sought the classical solution, a proletariat revolt in the cities, and those who saw the peasant as the liberator of China, the ideological victory of Mao, his defeat by Chiang and his retreat in the Long March.

Running in and out of this story are episodes that sound like. and may well be extracts from Hawthorne, Jack London Stephen Crane or Ambrose Bierce, Walter Pater and who knows what others. At one point, the author lists, as the improbable reading matter of Mao, a list of American magazines and books that run from Art News to Harper's Bazaar and from "The Three Musketeers" and "Moby Dick" to "Understand-ing Media" and "In Cold Blood." They may have all contributed to the novel.

Some of the selections deal with the American Civil War, suggesting parallels to the war in China with its brutality, re-lentlessness and inhumanity. Some of the pieces deal with aesthetics as if Mr. Tuten were positing a parallel between the emergence of the statue from the stone-entelechy, Aristotle would have called it—and the emergence of the revolution from the matrix of events.

Such jottings may be overserious. For much of the book is hilarious. An intense lecture on why the Red Army soldier does not rape women turns out to be a tedious disquisition on the development of the family down the ages. It balances on that fine edge between outright farce and quasi-serious dialogue and it's almost too good to be true.

A brief interlude that evaluates "Hymn to a Cockroach" as one of the great poems of the century manages to work in all the critical cliches of the last halfcentury. It sounds like the scraps and shards of a Ph. D. oral But even at its most ludicrous, "The Adventures of Mao" is always solid, meaty and full of ideas. form is strange and in-

Sieve Aycock, the Sooners' All-America linebacker, called Johnny Rodgers's 72-yard punt return and a third-down pass that Rodgers caught from Jerry Tagge in the last drive "the big plays in the game."

With Nebraska on Oklahoma's 46-yard line in the final drive in a third-and-8 situation, Tagge came under heavy pressure from defensive end Raymond Hamilton. He eluded the lineman's grasp, rolled to his right "and I started to turn up to run in," he said.

'A Great Catch'

"That's when I saw Johnny Rodgers run across the field. It was a poor pass, just a great catch."

Rodgers made a diving grab, "I just couldn't believe," Aycock said. Nebraska had a first down at the Sooner 35 and scored six plays later when Jeff Kinney dove two yards off left tackle for the day's final touchdown-his fourth, Kinney gained 174 yards for the day, 154 in the second half.

Chuck Fairbanks, the Oklaho-ma coach, attributed Nebraska's strong second-half showing to Tagge's "great job of calling nu-tomatics" 'and the Corphusker

"This is a great victory," he said, smiling broadly. "Now if we can just get by Hawaii some way (Nebraska's opponent next week in Honolulu), well, somebody might name us national champs."

Sophomore Quarterbacks To Guide Army and Navy

By Kenneth Turan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (WP).—This is the story of two quarterbacks and how they grew.

Both are sophomores. In years of age they total 38. a figure John Unitas can match. Both were reserves when the season started. Each will start when Army meets Navy tomorrow in Philadelphia.

Fred Stuvek, holder of a plebe record with 21 touchdown passes, was No. 4 among Navy quarterbacks when spring practice ended.

"I wasn't ready psychologically during the spring," he said. "It wasn't ready psychologically during all the string. No-body likes being No. 2, and I was a little depressed. Part of being a human being is being depressed, but I felt if I had a chance I could do better." had a chance I could do better."

Not Resigned

Kingsley Fink, only 18 but already much too serious a young man to be kidded about his name, started the year behind Dick Atha at Army but never doubted his time would

"Resigned to being No. 2? I'm not that kind of person. sir. I always try to be best at what I do. I have confidence in myself. I tell the rest of the team not to worry about my position, to worry about themselves."

Pink's chance came in Army's third game, when he threw three touchdown passes and beat Missouri. Again, in a substitute capacity, he threw the winning touchdown pass against Virginia, an act which earned him the starting position in the next three games.

In that third game, against Pittsburgh two weeks ago, he was benched for "not going out and throwing the football like I knew I could."

But substitute Atha was equally inept, and Fink came in to rally the Cadets to 10 points and a victory in the last 5 1/2 minutes Fink's passing has caught the attention of Navy coach

Rick Forzano, who says, "He can wheel the ball, he puts it right in there." Fink's completion average of 41 percent is not overwhelming, and he is by all accounts indifferent as a runner, but he makes the big play and is considered Army's best quarterback prospect in some years. "Long, short, he can throw that ball and he can hurt you," says Army coach Tom Cahill. Stuvek's completion percentage is a bit better, 48 percent for 879 yards and five touchdowns, compared to 669 yards and six scores for Fink. Stuvek had an adventage over Pink in starting the regular season as No. 1. But Al Gienny took over midway through the Virginia opener and Stuvek saw limited duty until Glenny was ousted for the season by a ferocious tackle three games later at Pittsburgh. Then Stuvek-led teams upset both Duke and Syracuse. Stuvek completed 30 of 50 passes for 509 yards in his last two games. Forzano was able to say, "I have no doubts about Fred's poke, It's the biggest thing that has improved.

It's just tremendous." "I just love to throw the football," says Stuvek. "I go out and throw it for enjoyment like other people go to the movies. I think I can throw one just as good as anybody."

Jets' Namath Is Drilling for 49ers For the first time since he was injured on Aug. 7, New York Jets' quarterback Joe Namath began the countdown to a football game this week. Namath joined his teammates in viewing game films on Tuesday, a major step on the road back. He has been working out and is drilling this week.

"My knee hurts right now, all the way down to the toes," the 23-year-old quarterback said, "and I don't know if I can play Sunday. But I want to play and, for the first time, I'm going through all the mental preparations leading up to a game."

The Jets have until noon Sunday, one hour before the game with the 49ers, to return Namath to the active list.

Here is a preview of the National Football League games, with won-lost-tied records in parenthesis, as seen by William N. Wallace of The New York Sunday

SAN FRANCISCO (6-4-0) at N.Y. JETS (4-6-0)-The appearance or nonappearance of Joe Namath has eclipsed the importance of this game for the disappointing 49ers, who have lost their last two. Their passer, John Brodie, has 21 interceptions against him. He had only 10 all last season. Betting choice: 49ers by 8.

BALTIMORE (7-3-0) at OAK-LAND (7-1-2)—If the Colts lose this one, the defending Super Bowl champions may not qualify for the playoffs. John Unitas will start. The Raiders last lost on opening day. Tom Keating's return will belp an injured defensive line. Betting choice: DENVER (2-7-1) at PITTS-

Jerry West's scoring and Wilt Chamberlain's defensive work carried the Los Angeles Lakers to their 12th straight National Basketball Association victory, 139-115, over Scattle last night

West hit for 26 points, half coming in the third quarter. West also had 10 assists in the third period. Chamberlain scored 17 points and blocked 12 Seattle not have ready Chic Alien, their seasoned middle linebacker, or John Fuqua, the No.1 runner. Steve Ramsey lost but did well in his first pro start as the Bronco quarterback. Betting choice: Steelers by 7.

CLEVELAND (5-5-0) at HOUS-TON (1-8-1)-In a chake-up, the Browns hate benched two longtime stars, Dick Schafrath at guard and Jun Houston at linebacker. Bill Nelsen is back at quarterback. The Oilers' "play-ing" owner, Bud Adams, may select the opening quarterback, probably Charley Johnson, Bet-ting choice: Browns by 7.

NE'S ENGLAND (4-6-0) 2t BUFFALO (0-10-0)-The league's smallest crowd of the season is expected, under 40,000, or less if it snows. The only quarterback to have played without relief all season is the Patriots' Jim Plunkett. J.D. Hill, the Bills' top draft pick who has been hurt. will start as a receiver. Betting choice: Even.

SAN DIEGO (4-6-0) at CINCIN-NATI (3-7-0) -- Another playing owner, Gene Klein, wants the new coach, Harland Svare, to start Marty Domres instead of John Hadl as the Charger quarterback. The top receiver, Bill Parks, has a broken arm. The Bengals have won two straight with Virgil Carter back at quarterback and can still make the playoffs. Betting choice: Bengals by 7.

ATLANTA (5-4-1) at MIN-NESOTA (8-2-0)-All of a sudden this is a big game and the Vikings had best beware. The Falcon: are hitting and smell success at last. It will be the first game at Bloomington for Norm Van Brocklin, the Falcon coach, since he left the Vikings after 1966. Betting choice: Vikings by 7.

WASHINGTON (6-3-1) at PHILADELPHIA (3-6-1) - The Redskins have won once in their last five games. Sonny Jurgensen may start at quarterback. The Eagles have restored Pete Liske as their No.: quarterback and Won last time on three field goals by their new kicker. Tom Dempsey. Betting choice: Redskins by 6. NEW ORLEANS (3-5-2) vs. GREEN BAY (3-6-1) at Milwaukee -Fred Carr and Date Robinson, the Packers' linebacker, are hurt. Archie Manning's arm feels bet-ter, so he may start as the Saints' quarterback. Betting choice: Packers by 8.

ST. LOUIS (2-7-0) at GIANTS (4-6-0) -The wounded Cardinals regain Jamie Rivers, their middle linebacker, and Cid Edwards, the running back. But they are doing everything wrong this sea-The Giants hope Bob Tucker, the conference's No.2 receiver, can play as well as Tucker Frederickson at running back. Betting choice: Giants by 7. Monday Night

CHICAGO (64-0) at MIAMI (8-1-1)—The Dolphins have the league's best record and longest winning streak, seven games. Garo Yepremian, their baldish 5-foot-8 Cypriot kicker, has had at least one field goal in the last 14 regular-season games. Dick Gordon, their top receiver, may return for the Bears. Betting choice: Dolphins by 10.

Orr Leads Bruins Past NHL Flyers

BOSTON, Nov. 26 (UPI).—Bobby scored an unassisted tally in the third period last night to give the Boston Bruins their seventh straight National Hockey League victory, 4-2, over the Philadelphia

Rosewall Upsets Laver in 4 Sets

Rosewall, a 37-year-old Australian, prevailed in two crucial tiebreaker situations today to defeat favored countryman Rod Laver and capture the $50,000 first price in the World Championship of Tennis—the largest purse in the sport's history. Rosewall won, 6-4, 1-6, 7-6, 7-6, in the final in Memoral Auditorium at Dallas before about 7,000 spectators. It was a stunning defeat for the 33-year-old Laver, who had whipped Rosewall eight of the last nine times they had met. Rosewall's deft lobs and top spin serves kept the hard-hitting Laver off balance through most of the match. Rosewall won the best 7 points out of 12 tie-breaker in the third set, 7-3. In the fourth set, with the games tied, 6-all, he won the tie-breaker, 7-4. Laver, 33, doubled-faulted nine

Menetrey Keeps Welter Crown

GENEVA, Nov. 26 (Reuters) .-European welterweight champion Roger Menetrey of France retained crown here tonight when Italy's Silvano Bertini retired after 40 seconds of the 13th round. The Italian, with superior tech-

An inquiry into the death of Swiss racing driver Jo Siffert in a race crash at Brands Hatch. England, last month blamed the fatality on the failure of three fire extinguishers to work. Siffert died within a minute of the crash of his BRM, through asphyxiation. "If there had been no fire, he would not have died." said pathologist Keith Randall at the Tonbridge, England, inquest. The racetrack's fire marshal, Barry Fcot, said, "None of the three fire extinguishers we had operated properly." With proper equipment. Foot said, it would have been possible to quell the flames in 10 seconds and get Siffert out, if he was not trapped. The jury returned a verdict of ac-

The California Angels assigned the contract of Tony Conigliaro to Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League. Conigliaro left the team on July 13, claiming eve trouble from a 1967 beaning. He was suspended without pay, but after medical examinations, was paid an estimated $20,000 on his contract. He is undecided whether to resume his career. If he does, the Angels said they will invite him to spring training.

DALLAS, Nov. 26 (AP).—Ken times in the match and a number of times netted easy shots. He also had trouble with Rosewall's lobs which always seemed to drop just inside the base line. Laver, who has earned more than $1 million playing professional tennis, captured the $20,-000 second-place money. He has won $292,717 this year. The match climaxed a 20 tournament world tour.

McLendon Tops Golf by 1 In 2d Round

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. Nov. 26 (UPI).-Mac McLendon. a 26-year-old from Birmingham, Ala., slashed four strokes off par on the first four holes today and went on to post a 67-138 that gave him a one-stroke lead over Bob Lunn at the midway point of the Heritage Golf Clasic. McLendon, who had been off the tour the past two months because his wife had a baby, has won barely $17,000 in 30 tournaments this year and had to qualify Monday to earn a spot in

But he started like a champion today—sinking a 20-foot birdie putt at No. 1, dropping in a 125-yard wedge shot for an eagle-2 at No. 3, and placing his tee shot 3 1 2 feet from the pin to set up another birdie at the par-3 fourth hole.

After that McLendon, whose only PGA victory was in his rookie year of 1958, when he won the Magnolia Classic the same week as the Masters, tapered off. He matched two birdies with two bogeys over the final 14 holes to wind up with his 4under-par 67 round.

Tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus, battling in the closing weeks of the tour to catch pacesetting Lee Trevino in the race for the money title, shot a 69 and was tied for third place at 140 with Canadian George Knudson, who fired a 5-under-par 66a stroke off the course recordand Bob Smith, who had his second straight 70.

Trevino shot a 71 for a 149 total, 11 strokes off the lead. Arnold Palmer took a 74 for a 143 after suffering through a double bogey and two bogeys for a 4-over-par front nine.

Campaign Sabotage

Congress is attempting to pass legislation which would infringe on the rights of people. The Senate passed a bill last week which would permit each taxpayer to donate one dollar of his taxes to finance the 1972 presidential campaign. The House has several bills limiting the amount of money politicians can spend on their campaigns. If any of these bills become law,

Buchwald it means that right of large corporations and labor unions to buy politiclana would be abrogated, and the vested interests in this country would be hard put to interests in this finance the campaigns of congressmen, senators and the Pres-

Terence L. Bloodstone, president of the Washington Order of Loyal Lobbyists, angrily denounced the new plans to finance politicians as a threat to the American political way of "The salvation of this democracy." he told me at a $500-a-plate political testimonial dinner, is big business's and big labor's financing of political campaigns. For years we have made it possible for every politician in this country to be elected. There isn't one congressman, senator, or governor who doesn't owe a debt to us. Now Congress wants to take that away."

"It does seem unfair," I ad-Bloodstone stabbed his fork into his lobster thermidor.

"We've been buying and selling politicians for years. They trust us, they believe in us, they'll go to bat for us." "Many of them are even in

$787,500 Paid for Bellotto Painting

LONDON, Nov. 26 (AP),-An anonymous private collector paid £315,000 ($787,500) at Christie's today for "The Ponte delle Navi" by Bernardo Bellotto, 18th-century Italian artist. It was more than five times the record price for a Bellotto. The previous record was established last June at Christie's when one of his paintings sold for £57,750 ($144,375).

WASHINGTON. - Once again bed with you," I said, trying to

He ignored this remark, "Look around at this dinner. Every table of ten people represents $5,000. Who bought these tables? Corporations, bankers, manufacturers and public-minded millionaires. We don't ask anything for ourselves. We just want the best man elected to the best job. Do you think people who contribute one lousy dollar from their taxes will have any idea who the best man is?" "I should say not," I replied. "You have to contribute a lot of money to know what is good for the country." Bloodstone started tearing his duck à l'orange apart. "Do you know what is going to happen if these political fundraising schemes become law? The politicians aren't going to be responsible to anybody. They're going to figure it's the taxpayer's money so they don't have to answer for their actions."

"It's true," I said. "At least now a politician knows who gave him the money and can react accordingly,"

"The Democrats are sore," Bloodstone said, "because they can't get anyone to come to their dinners. But I say if a political party can't sell out, a $500-aplate dinner, it shouldn't be in politics. Just because they don't have an Agnew or a Martha Mitchell is no reason to sabotage all of the campaign fund-raising methods of this country." Bloodstone was now guiping down his fole gras. I said: "It seems a pity that after all the seed work the lobbyists have done to get politicians in their pocket, that a group of senators or congressmen would destroy it with some self-serving legislation.

"Don't think the fight is over," Bloodstone said. "The Senate bill har to go to the House and then it has to go to the President. Do you think any Republican President would sign a law that would help the Democrats finance their campaign?"

"I should hope not." I said. The waiter brought our cherries jubilėe Bloodstone belched "Besides.

we have to think of the economy. What's going to happen to all the hotel banquet rooms if they do away with political fundraising dinners? "What a blow to Conrad Hilton," I said.

The Maginot Line as a Weekend Retreat

By Alec Hargreaves

METZ. France. Nov. 26 (Reuters).--Marcel Joifroy has just bought part of a military disaster that most Frenchmen would prefer to forget. He is now the proud owner of a bunker and observation tower on the Maginot Line.

The massive fortifications which stretch above and below ground in a broken line along the Franco-German border near here were doomed to failure the day Adolf Hitler decided to ignore them.

"People around here just don't in the bleak countryside, they will seem to be interested in the line anymore," auctioneer Paul Partz said. A second lot consisting of a bunker and two hectares of land was left unsold.

But a Parisian hairdresser Serge Stepanian, had to face a little competition from other bidders two days later when he bought an observation post for 13,000 francs.

Like Mr. Joffroy, he intends to use it as a holiday retreat. They need have no fear of buror 6-foot-thick concrete

The main installations are below ground—a vast subterranean maze that helped create the line's prewar reputation as one of the wonders of the modern world.

It is still possible to ride on lifts and railways designed to carry men and munitions from one part of the line to another. Now the concrete tunnels lie deserted and empty, a monument to miscalculation
